

N. West Moss has written the critically acclaimed memoir, Flesh & Blood: Reflections on Infertility, Family, and Creating a Bountiful Life (published by Algonquin 2021). She has a short story collection called The Subway Stops at Bryant Park (published by Leapfrog), and her middle-grade novel Birdy is forthcoming from Christy Ottaviano at Little, Brown. Her work has appeared in The New York Times, Salon, McSweeney's, The Saturday Evening Post, and many other places.