

Author's Bio

Radwa Ali is a librarian by day and obsessive designer by night. She is as passionate about the public library (and its role in maintaining a healthy, free democracy) as she is about technology's ability to enhance it. Christy Venarchick runs a small technology company and is an avid reader. She has read and documented close to 7,000 picture books since the birth of her children. Both Radwa and Christy started their writing journey with a very simple goal in mind: create the books they themselves love to read.