

Marcia Sawyer

Marcia Sawyer is a longtime North Jersey resident with close connections to Philadelphia such as graduating from the University of Pennsylvania (Penn) and having family and friends in the area, including her co-author, Sandy Mayer. Marcia loves working with children in an elementary school as a teacher's aide and using her communications degree and occupational therapy background to help children grow as learners and readers while developing successful life skills. Marcia and Sandy's many trips to Homecoming at Penn inspired Betsy's Philadelphia Adventure, an educational children's book, which is loaded with popular tourist destinations in the city, as well as fun facts about Philly and Penn.
